ACADEMIC PUBLICATIONS

Culpability in Atrocity and the Role of Complicit Observer, 37 TEMP. INT'L & COMP. L.J. ____ (forthcoming 2023).

Atrocity crimes are often associated with an aesthetic of horrific spectacle, the criminal nature of which is considered intuitively recognizable. This contribution to a symposium on Randle DeFalco's Invisible Atrocities (CUP 2022) argues culpability as imagined by the observer is an important and overlooked dimension of the so-called "atrocity aesthetic." It is the sense of our complicity being intolerable that distinguishes the atrocity aesthetic—and atrocities from "mere" tragedies—rather than the spectacular.

SELECTED WORKS IN PROGRESS

Procedural Sovereign Distinction

Civil procedure sets different rules for foreign sovereign and foreign private defendants in U.S. courts. Ostensibly, the reason for distinguishing between these defendants is grounded in the nature of sovereignty. However, many procedural rules have lost track of the concept of sovereignty, creating a mismatch between the justification for the distinction and the way it's applied. In this Article, I argue we should at least acknowledge this mismatch exists, and we should consider revising our procedural rules to promote the value of coherence and justification in law.

Impossible Commands: Hobbes and Spinoza on Law, Rights, and Resistance

In this draft, I examine Thomas Hobbes and Baruch Spinoza's approaches to laws that would require an individual to perform an act contrary to their human nature. Doing so begins to reveal the range of possibilities available and the vast ramifications that even small shifts in our political theory of obedience and resistance can have.
